

HISTORY OF THE OFFICE OF THE SECRETARY OF DEFENSE

INTO THE MISSILE AGE

1956-1960

National Arch

U.S. citizens board a landing craft for evacuation from the Gaza Strip during the Suez crisis

National Archives

Secretary of State Dulles addresses an emergency session of the UN General Assembly during the Suez crisis, 2 November 1956.

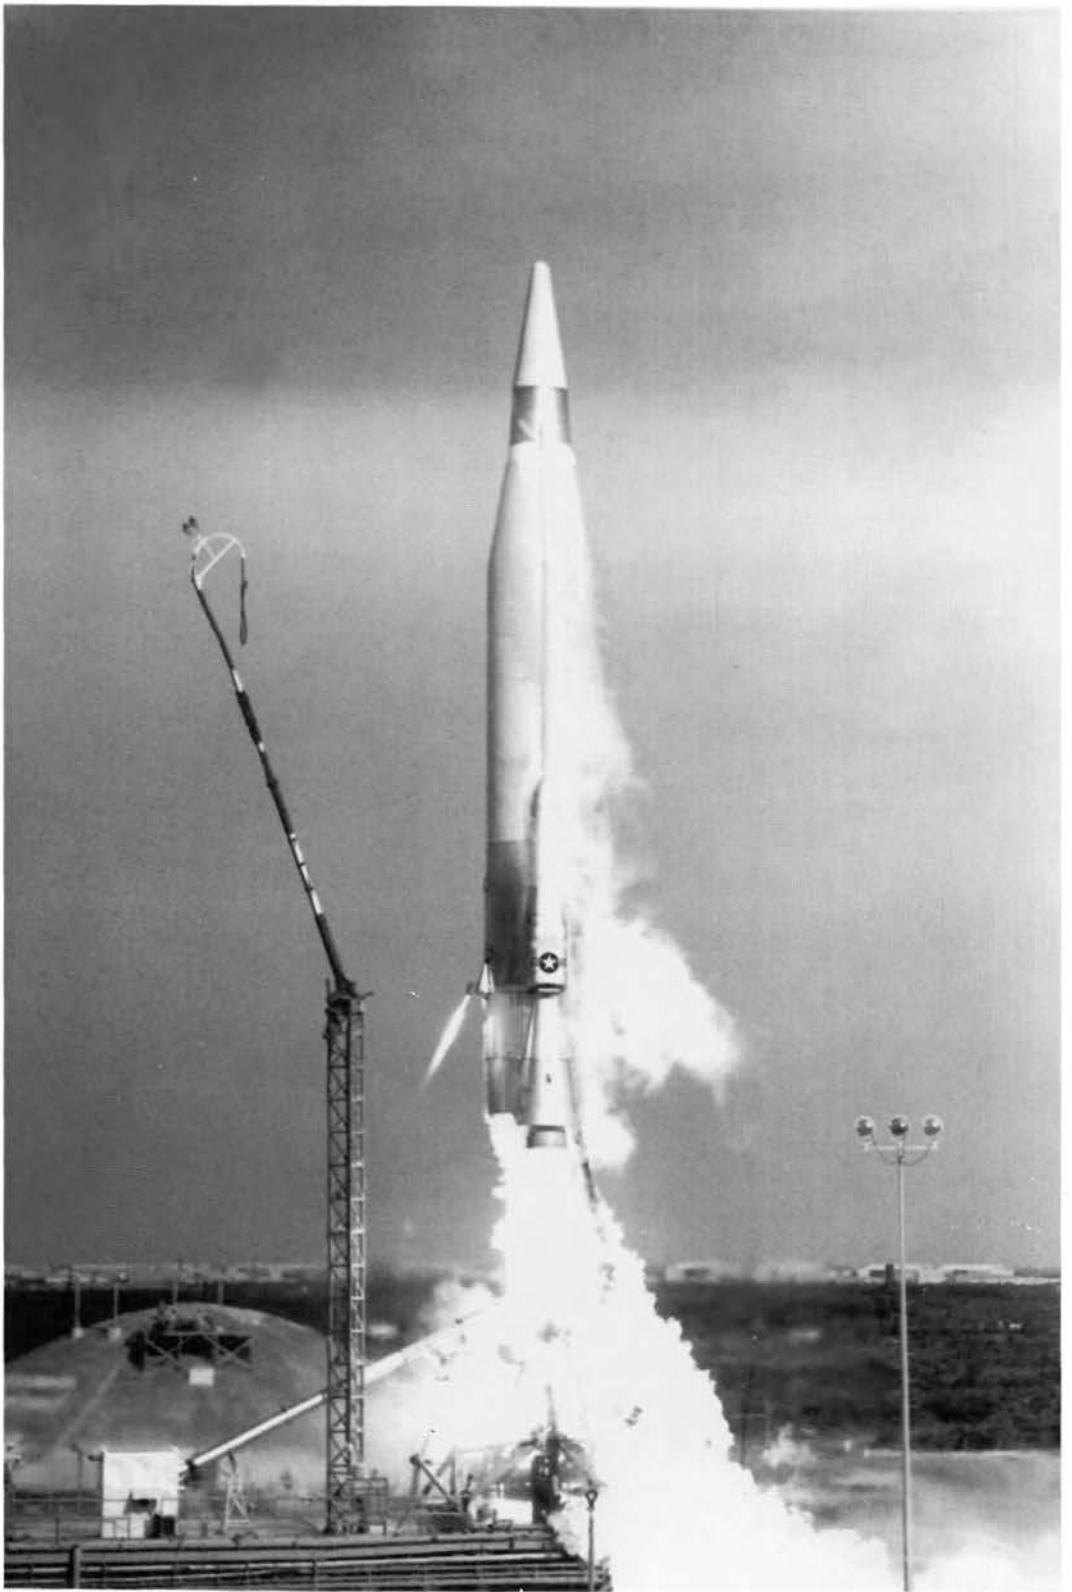

National Archives

U-2 reconnaissance aircraft (with Air Force insignia).

National Archives

Air Force Titan missile launched at Cape Canaveral, 3 April 1959.

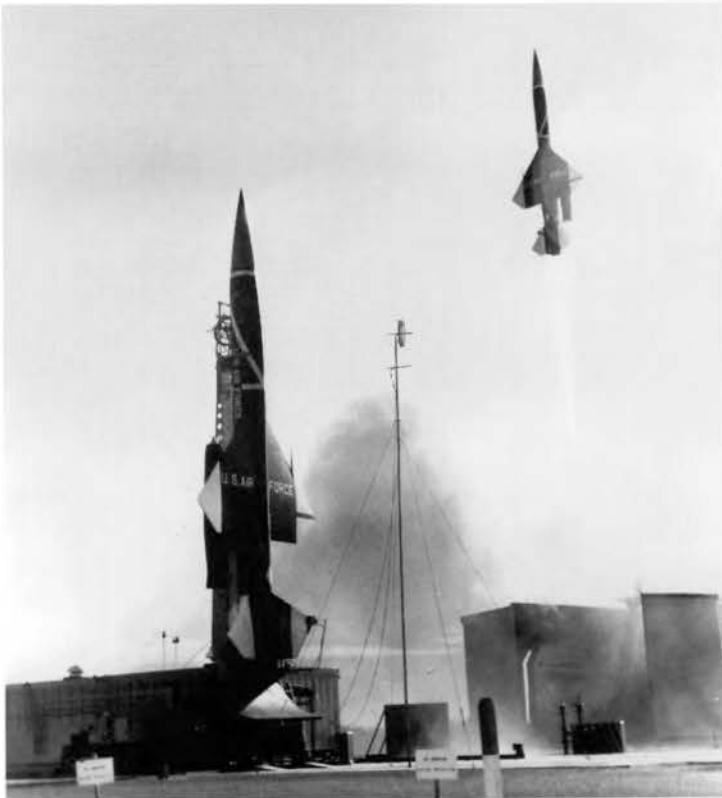

National Archives

Air Force Atlas missile launched at Cape Canaveral, 12 August 1960.

U.S.Army

Early test model of the Army's Nike-Zeus antimissile missile, 16 December 1959.

National Archives

Air Force Bomarc interceptor missiles at Cape Canaveral, 27 June 1959.

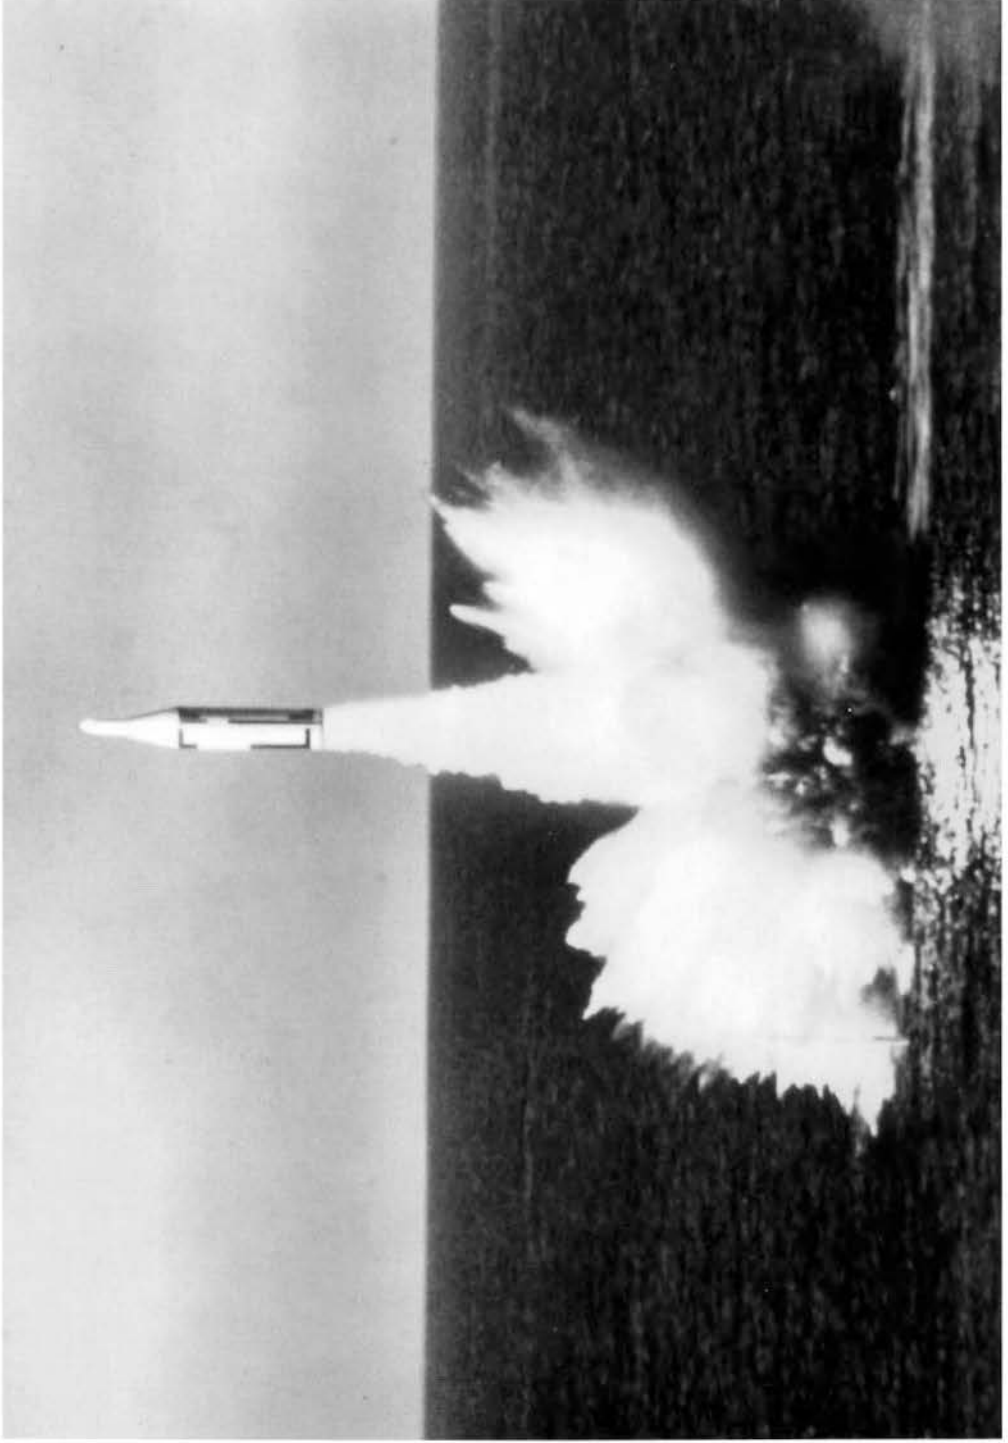

U.S. Navy

U.S. Marines landing in Lebanon, 16 July 1958.

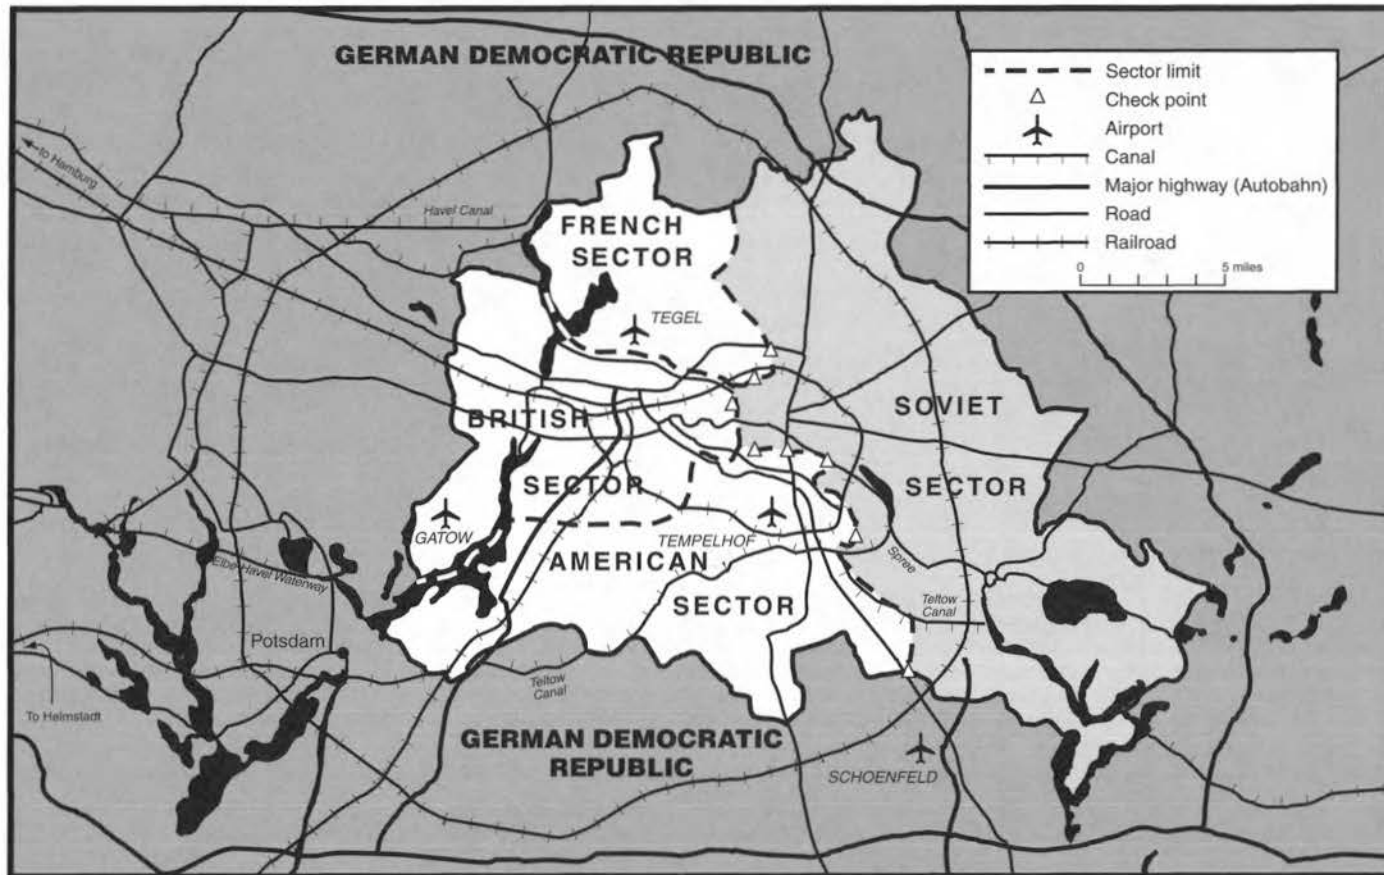

Deputy Secretary Quarles and T. Keith Glennan, newly appointed administrator of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, announce the transfer of DoD space-related activities to NASA, 1 October 1958.

U.S. Navy

First Polaris missile fired from USS George Washington, 20 July 1960.

Occupation Sectors in Berlin